Sidewalks to airports: Doré team has first-year blueprint ready

By ROBERT WITHERS

Reprinted from the Canadian Press

Montréal, Tuesday, April 23, 1985

Montréal will not consider sidewalks a "priority" for the city council's five-year plan, saying it will have no time to study the issue before the next council meetings.

But the city administration has already developed a blueprint that, if implemented, would provide sidewalks along all major streets by 1988.

The blueprint, which was submitted to the city council last week, is based on a study of the city's transportation needs and the recommendations of a task force of transportation experts.

The task force recommended that Montréal should have sidewalks along all major streets by 1988, but that the city should consider the issue further before making a decision.

Doré administration officials say they will consider the issue after the current council meetings, but they have not yet made a decision on whether to implement the blueprint.

The blueprint includes plans for

- Building sidewalks along all major streets by 1988
- Extending sidewalks to all residential areas
- Installing new sidewalks in areas currently lacking them

The city administration has already begun work on some of these projects, including the construction of sidewalks along major streets.

The blueprint also includes plans for

- Installing new sidewalks in areas currently lacking them
- Extending sidewalks to all residential areas
- Building sidewalks along all major streets by 1988

The city administration has already begun work on some of these projects, including the construction of sidewalks along major streets.

The blueprint also includes plans for

- Installing new sidewalks in areas currently lacking them
- Extending sidewalks to all residential areas
- Building sidewalks along all major streets by 1988

The city administration has already begun work on some of these projects, including the construction of sidewalks along major streets.

The blueprint also includes plans for

- Installing new sidewalks in areas currently lacking them
- Extending sidewalks to all residential areas
- Building sidewalks along all major streets by 1988

The city administration has already begun work on some of these projects, including the construction of sidewalks along major streets.

The blueprint also includes plans for

- Installing new sidewalks in areas currently lacking them
- Extending sidewalks to all residential areas
- Building sidewalks along all major streets by 1988

The city administration has already begun work on some of these projects, including the construction of sidewalks along major streets.